1 Testing II: Automated replay and failure detection for web applications

 Sara Sprenkle, Emily Gibson, Sreedevi Sampath, Lori Pollock
 November 2005 Proceedings of the 20th IEEE/ACM international Conference on Automated software engineering ASE '05

Publisher: ACM Press

User-session-based testing of web applications gathers user sessions to create and continually update test suites based on real user input in the field. To support this approach during maintenance and beta testing phases, we have built an automated framework for testing web-based software that focuses on scalability and evolving the test suite automatically as the application's operational profile changes. This paper reports on the automation of the replay and oracle components for ...

Publisher: ACM Press

This study examines occupational stress among information systems personnel. A self-report stress and health behavior instrument was completed by 580 respondents in 18 large corporations in the midwestern and southwestern sections of the United States. The data indicate that various job factors are perceived as stressful by respondents. However, the stress levels reported by respondents are not as excessive as have been found in studies of other occupational groups.

Formal specifications can precisely and unambiguously define the required behavior of a software system or component. However, formal specifications are complex artifacts that need to be verified to ensure that they are consistent, complete, and validated against the requirements. Specification testing or animation tools exist to assist with this by allowing the specifier to interpret or execute the specification. However, currently little is known about how to do this effectively. This article p ...

Managing computer labs in an educational environment can be a daunting task - at the best of times - not only from a technical standpoint but from an auditing and planning perspective as well. Integrated Technology Services (ITS), at the University of New Brunswick, faced this problem in 2002. With over 1100 computers in public and private labs, we were unable to efficiently maintain our cyclic four year computer renewal plan without adequate and reliable information on lab usage. This paper wil ...

5 Measuring the internet's vital statistics: An analysis of TCP reset behaviour on the internet

Full text available: pdf\(522.16 KB\) Additional Information: full citation, abstract, references, index terms

This paper presents a one-year study of Internet packet traffic from a large campus network, showing that 15-25% of TCP connections have at least one TCP RST (reset). Similar results have also been observed from measurements of other Internet links. The results in this paper show that reset connections arise from local events such as network outages, attacks, or reconfigurations, as well as from global trends in TCP usage. In particular, we identify application-level Web behaviour as the primary ...

6 An empirical study of computer capacity planning in Japan

Full text available: pdf\(1.18 MB\) Additional Information: full citation, abstract, references, index terms

Capacity planners in Japan rely heavily on intuitive and judgmental approaches in their computer capacity planning functions, even more so than their U.S. counterparts, according to the following survey. The emphasis in large Japanese firms on job rotations, lifetime employment, and extensive social and informal interaction among employees helps contribute to the effectiveness of these judgmental methods.
